

Quentin Jones launches first collection for Habitat

Mixed-media artist unveils first limited-edition textiles collaboration

June 2019: Acclaimed illustrator and mixed-media artist Quentin Jones is set to launch her debut interiors collection for Habitat on Tuesday 4 June 2019 at www.habitat.co.uk/quentin

The limited-edition textiles collection translates a series of new artworks across a capsule of hand woven rugs and embroidered cushions. Structured typography, bold primary colours, fluid freehand lines and figurative elements are assembled in Quentin’s signature style, each artwork reworked by hand and showcasing a different hand-finished technique from Habitat’s oldest textiles supplier.

“One strand of thought that runs through my artworks is coincidence. I play with connections between two converging materials, and the surprises that result from this. I wanted this to play out in my pieces for Habitat despite not using photography and so I turned my eye to typography colliding with hand painted lines and shapes, and of course was drawn to playing with elements of the human face which becomes a central motif.”

About Quentin Jones

Quentin Jones is a director, illustrator and photographer whose films and images have appeared in magazines such as iD and Vogue, and has worked with Chanel, Louis Vuitton and Victoria Beckham to name a few. She studied philosophy at Cambridge, followed by an MA in illustration at Central St Martins. Her aesthetic is often described as a modern take on the surrealist tradition, realised largely through photomontage, loose paintwork and dynamic video editing. quentinjones.info

About Habitat

For over fifty years Habitat has been imagining life as it should be. Since its revolutionary beginnings in 1964 the brand has made outstanding design for the home accessible to all by bringing enduring, inventive and affordable products crafted from around the globe to the UK high street.
